

CWA Strike Orderly But Men Are Firm On Stand at Utica

Workers Aunth Reply to Telegram Sent Federal Administrator Hopkins—Demand Return to Old Scale of Hours and Wages—$9.50 Not Enough, They Say.

Utica, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Continuing their strike or protest against "starvation wages," 1,000 city CWA workers gathered this morning in Chamberlain Park, in the shadow of the CWA headquarters, then began a march to every work project to urge others of the 2,500 on CWA rolls to join them.

In double file, stretching out for blocks, the men proceeded from point to point without violence and with little noise. "It was understood at the outset that there would be no violence, and I for one will not take part in or stand for any," was the word of their leader, Patrick A. McCabe, about 26 years old.

McCabe is one of the chieftains who signed telegrams dispatched to Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator at Washington, and Alfred Schoellkopf, administrator of the New York Federal CWA at New York. The telegrams read:

"The several hundred employees of the CWA here in Utica have quietly left their work and have protested the cut in wages and hours because the same is not in keeping with the spirit of this work as directed by our noble President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"We ask that we be given thirty hours a week and fifty cents an hour which was paid at the beginning of this work.

We stand squarely behind our President and every effort that he is putting into this work and will gladly go back if given this fair play."

No reply had been received this morning, McCabe told the strikers before the march began today.

A suggestion that Communistic or Socialistic influence was behind the calling of the strike was attacked by the leader.

"There are no Communists or radicals here," he said. "We are all CWA workers. They have cut our pay down to $9.50, and we can't live on that. People are getting home relief and receive support without doing any work; we can do the same thing."

"There is enough to eat in this country and we are going to get it."

The first stop made by the demonstrators this morning was at a street sewer job where the majority of seventy men engaged joined the ranks of the protesters.

Meanwhile a statement issued by three members of the emergency relief CWA committee of Utica, including Paul B. Williams, vice president and editor of the Utica Daily Press, informed the strikers under federal authority and instructions. Reduction of the number of men to be employed, the hours they work and the rate of their pay is made up on order from Washington. The committee has no discretion.

Utica's quota for CWA has been cut from 3,200 to 2,300 men.

DILLINGER MENACE MAKES OHIOANS NERVOUS

Lima, O., March 12 (AP)—A growing apprehension that John Dillinger, whittling jail breaker, may dare to lead a raid to free an imprisoned pal, made trigger fingers nervous in Ohio today.

Several signs pointed to the possibility that Dillinger may be bent on liberating Harry Pierpont, doomed murderer, from the county jail here. Pierpont helped free Dillinger from the same jail last October 12, slaying Sheriff Jess Sarber in the act, and Dillinger undoubtedly would like to return the favor.

Besides that, there were these indications:

1. The disappearance of a Leipsic, Ohio, woman, Police said she is known to have communicated with one of three Dillinger henchmen held here.

2. The brief announcement of Judge E. E. Everett, "I have received direct word that Dillinger is on his way here with armed men."

3. Recurrent alarms concerning automobiles supposed to carry Dillinger.

The trial of Charles Makler, held here with Pierpont and Russell Clark for the slaying of Sheriff Sarber, proceeded today with the selection of a jury. Pierpont was already been convicted and Clark's case comes up later.

Amendment to "Gross" Income Tax Bill Also Passed By The Assembly

Measure to Allow Personal Exemptions For Small Salaried Earners Passed Without Opposition—Tax Now Requires Every Person Above the Exempt Class To Pay One Cent on Each Dollar of His Income.

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—The measure, adopted last year to balance the budget, automatically expires at the end of the present year. It applies only to 1933 incomes.

When the amendment was before the senate an effort was made by Senator George H. Pearson, Republican minority leader, to have the tax repealed outright but the Democrats blocked his move. He then tried to put through an amendment exempting earned incomes, but this also failed.

Senator Charles J. Hewitt, Locke Republican, was the only member of the legislature to vote against the governor's amendment.

The tax now requires every person above the exempt class to pay one cent on each dollar of his income.

Governor Lehman in his annual message to the legislature said that before enactment of the tax people of large means who are recipients of sizeable incomes were "able legally to avoid paying the regular income tax by the simple expedient of taking capital losses."

The amendment slashes $14,000,000 from the $37,000,000 which the governor originally expected to derive from the emergency tax. The

No Work for Jury In Supreme Court

For The Second Day There Were No Cases Ready To Go To Trial With A Jury—Inquest Taken Before The Court.

Judge Adel for the second day convened supreme court only to find that there were no cases ready to go to trial with a jury. The jurors were discharged for the second successive day without having had any duty to perform. An inquest was taken before the court without a jury.

In excusing the jurors until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock Judge Adel stated that he hoped there would be some work ready at that time.

The usual Ulster county practice of making up a long day calendar, none of which is ready for trial, caused the court to break again for the second day this week. There were a number of cases on the day calendar but when called the attorneys were not ready to go to trial.

Judge Adel stated that Wednesday he would try any case on the calendar whether it was at the top or the bottom of the calendar if the attorneys in the case were ready. He said in addition that he would even try a case which was not on the day calendar provided the case was ready on the part of both plaintiff and defendant. The first case which is announced ready to go to trial will be taken up regardless of its position on the calendar. "If anybody wants a trial we will be ready to give them that opportunity," said Judge Adel.

He also suggested that the live cases might be sifted from the dead ones by a general call on the calendar now so that cases which counsel intends to mark over on later calls might be eliminated so as not to clutter up the calendar.

GOVERNOR WOULD CONTINUE MILK CONTROL SYSTEM

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Legislation to give New York's 100,000 milk farmers another year of state control over prices is being prepared today.

Governor Lehman last night formally asked the legislature to continue the milk control system as suggested by the milk board. The governor said the first year of the experimental law had shown it to be of "great constructive value."

New York was the first state to undertake milk regulation. The supreme court recently upheld the constitutionality of the price-fixing provisions. Milk control laws in other states and some provisions of the national recovery program were modeled after the New York plan.

As the milk board recommended, the governor suggested incorporating its functions entirely within the state department of agriculture. This means that Chairman Charles H. Baldwin of the present board will continue as head of the control work since he is also commissioner of agriculture.

The bills carrying out the governor's program will exclude Dr. Thomas Parran, Jr., from the milk work. Dr. Parran, the state health commissioner, has expressed a desire to be relieved of his extra duties as a member of the board.

STUD DREAMER REPEATS IN A NEWARK HOSPITAL

Newark, N. J., March 12 (AP)—Victim of a bad dream, Philip Demott, 19, is in Newark Hospital today.

While asleep yesterday Demott dreamed his room was on fire, leaped out of bed, jumped through a window and fell to the ground two stories below. At the hospital he was found to have fractures of both wrists, ribs, bruises and possible internal injuries.

Democratic Leaders See Bonus Bill Defeat Lurking in the Senate

Backers, However, Say Bill Will Pass Senate—Senators More Worried About St. Lawrence Treaty—Roosevelt Does Not Think Credit Will Stand Bonus Allowance.

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Democratic leaders expressed confidence today that the $2,500,000,000 "greenback bonus" bill will never reach President Roosevelt's desk.

Although the House passed the measure late yesterday by the thumping margin of 295 to 125, the administration chieftains said the Senate would kill it. The President plans to veto the bill if it gets to him.

Backers of the bill, which calls for new currency to pay the ex-soldiers, were firm in their predictions that the Senate would approve it.

Today the Senate was less worried about the bonus issue, than about the St. Lawrence treaty, which President Roosevelt favors. Even Democratic leaders conceded the President might suffer a major defeat when the ballot is called tomorrow.

"We will not know conclusively until the vote is taken," said Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader.

Opponents of the seaway treaty asserted it would not even gain a majority, much less the two-thirds required to ratify. Proponents challenged this but would make no predictions of their own.

Despite its actions yesterday, the House still had a veterans problem on its hands today. This is the independent offices bill, laden with Senate amendments calling for $354,000,000 expenditures for veterans and Federal workers.

House Democrats voted in caucus to bind their membership to send the measure to a Senate-House conference without instructions to be figured a compromise could be obtained suitable to the White House, which frowns on expenditures of this magnitude.

Immediately after the caucus, however, more than three score Democrats excused themselves from being bound thus. They said they had previous commitments.

Leaders added this number to about 70 members who were absent from the meeting. Counting Republican strength, they figured there was no outside chance their plans might still be carried through.

The majority leadership thus was still undecided early this morning as to how the independent offices bill would be brought up in the House. Consideration has been given to instituting a strict rule that would virtually insure no instructions being given the conferees.

As for the bonus issue, senate leaders pointed out that it had twice been defeated in that branch this session, once by a voice vote and later by 64 to 24.

The bill was reintroduced late yesterday by Senator Long (D-La.) who predicted it could muster probably double its last strength if it stood on its own feet and not as riders to other measures as was the case of the last vote.

Democratic chiefs conceded the Tatum or Long bills would gain some votes if tested out now, but cited President Roosevelt's pronounced stand against the legislation at this time as the reason they believed it could not pass.

Robinson predicted the measure would never get through the senate, as did Chairman Harrison of the finance committee, which handles veterans' legislation on the senate side.

"The President," said Harrison, "does not think the government credit will permit and he has stated openly he would veto the bill."

TWO HERO MEDALS ASKED FOR BRAVE ENGLISH SETTER

Syracuse, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Two hero medals are being sought for Master's Milstead Byng, nine months old English setter who saved his owner's life in a rooming house fire Saturday that took a toll of two.

J. Henry Cassidy, managing director of the S. P. C. A. recommended the hero awards in letters to the American Humane Association and the Massachusetts Humane Society.

While others were dashing for bucks, during the fire, Charles F. Buckley, owner of the setter, slept on Master's Milstead Byng whined, barked, pawed, without awakening him. Then the animal jumped on the bed, tore the covers off Buckley, licked his face and barked some more. Buckley got out.

State Relief Program Held Back as Lehman Awaits Federal Plans

Governor Said to be Worried Over Possibility that State May Have to Shoulder Responsibility of Providing Relief—Only $400,000,000 Left to Carry Out Projects.

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—New York state's relief program for the coming year will have to be held to abeyance until the Federal government announces its plans.

That was the conclusion reached yesterday at a conference between Governor Lehman, legislative leaders and members of the state temporary relief administration, held to discuss the TERA's annual report and consider legislation for the remainder of the year.

There has been no definite information available on the Federal government's plans regarding its civil works program and sources close to the Governor revealed he was worried over the possibility the burden of work relief might have to be resumed by the state.

The legislature will be called upon during the next few days to pass a bill appropriating for unemployment relief the $400,000,000 left from the $650,000,000 bond issue voted last fall. This amount was expected to last until February 1935, but the TERA officials and the Governor expressed themselves as doubtful the money will last that long.

It was estimated that if the state has to resume work relief on the pre-CWA level, the funds will be exhausted several months ahead of time.

Those who attended the conference were: Alfred H. Schoellkopf of Buffalo, chairman of the TERA; Solomon Lowenstein of New York; Charles P. Osborne of Auburn; Joseph P. Ryan of New York and Henry Root Stern of Nassau county; members: Frederick L. Danile, director; Senator George R. Pearson, Republican minority leader; Speaker Joseph A. McGinnis of the Assembly and Assemblyman Irwin Springut, Democratic minority leaders.

EDITOR'S CASE TO GET A HEARING TOMORROW

Frankfort, Ky., March 12 (AP)—The case of Vance Armentrout, editor charged with contempt because he declined to tell the name of a person who wrote a letter to his paper, will go before the Kentucky House of Representatives tonight or tomorrow.

A special committee heard testimony and arguments at a hearing that ended early today. The House, if it finds Armentrout guilty, may impose, under the law, maximum penalties of six months or $1,000 fine or both.

Armentrout, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, has said he promised to keep confidential the name of the person who wrote the letter which was signed "A Member of the General Assembly." Legislators held that it cast aspersions on members of the House.

LA GUARDIA BILL IS SCHEDULED FOR NEW VOTE

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Mayor LaGuardia's New York city economy bill is scheduled to be given a new vote in the Assembly next week.

The Moffat bill, virtually identical with the measure which was defeated last week, was reported favorably by the committee on New York city affairs last night and was placed on today's second reading calendar.

It is understood that an effort will be made to pass the bill until it has had its three days on the calendar as provided in the rules of the House. A message from the governor would be required to speed up the procedure. Republican leaders have indicated they would wait until Monday night to roll a show down.

Dollfuss on Way To Meet Mussolini

Vienna, March 12 (AP)—The pace of events in Austria quickened suddenly today as Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss sped toward Rome to confer with Premier Mussolini of Italy and Goombos of Hungary.

Just before he departed, the little chancellor—who also is minister of defense and minister of foreign affairs—handed the portfolio of defense to Prince Schoenberg-Hartenstein, who until then had been only undersecretary of defense.

This move strengthened the prince's position in respect to Vice Chancellor Emil Fey, who otherwise would far outrank the undersecretary.

Simultaneously with the significant promotion—significant because Fey is a leading figure in the Fascist movement and there are all manner of rumors regarding what the Hitler may do in Dollfuss' absence—unverified reports circulated in Vienna concerning new troop movements.

All army members belonged to the "Drum board" which surveyed air corps activities at the time last summer that the air corps came under the jurisdiction of the army general staff.

The commission will be authorized to call all witnesses and take any testimony it may deem necessary.

The text, as printed by the Petit Parisien, instructed the agents to withdraw advertising from newspapers which showed anti-German news agency dispatches and to demand that it had proved to be "impossible" to establish relations of any sort with the Associated Press.

Forced to Detour on Central Broadway

Local CWA workers this morning began the work of running the steam pipes from the new Kingston Municipal Auditorium across the street to the other side of Broadway, where they are carried under the sidewalk to East O'Reilly street and thence to the central heating plant, located in the former water board building, adjoining the city hall.

In order that the street might be opened it was necessary to deliver traffic on Broadway beyond the Broadway crossing and to clear the way for the workmen. Five Are Indicted For Kidnaping Today

Socially Prominent Wife of St. Louis Physician Held to Be Member of Gang Which Abducted Dr. Kelley in 1931—Those Out on Bond Released.

St. Louis, March 13 (AP)—Mrs. Nellie Tipton Meech, wife of Dr. Lewis O. Meech, a physician, and four men were indicted at suburban Clayton today on a charge of kidnaping Dr. L. D. Kelley for ransom April 29, 1931.

The men indicted by the St. Louis county grand jury are Felix McDonald, former convict, Bart Davis, who was indicted with McDonald on a charge of attempting to kidnap a St. Louis man, but was acquitted, Angelo Rosegrant, salesman, and John C. Johnson, negro tenant on a farm where Dr. Kelley was held captive after he was lured from his home on a fake sick call.

Mrs. Meech was widely known in St. Louis as proprietor of an exclusive dress shop which went bankrupt in 1928 with a loss of $77,000 to creditors.

She is also a member of a circle of musical devotees and her husband is an accomplished violinist. The indictment followed an alleged expose of the kidnaping by Adolph Fiedler, a 300-pound former justice of the peace in Maplewood, a suburb. In a detailed story Fiedler implicated a woman and eight men, three of whom have been killed in gang feuds.

Fiedler's story was that a woman was the real brains behind the kidnaping of Dr. Kelley, who was wealthy and prominent in St. Louis social circles. The former justice of the peace said she conceived the plot and selected Kelley as the victim.

He said it was a woman who lured Dr. Kelley from his home on a stormy night and that she furnished the details for a telephone call which convinced Dr. Kelley that his professional services were needed.

All of the defendants are under bond, but county officials said they will be rearrested at once. Prosecuting Attorney Arthur Anderson and his associates have opened a month investigating Fiedler's story. It was reported they placed a mass of evidence before the grand jury, in addition to Fiedler's story.

Three Men Rescued From Japanese Boat

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

Sasebo, Japan, March 13 (AP)—With three men rescued out of the 113 trapped inside the capsized torpedo boat Tomozuru, rescue workers cut doggedly at the steel hull late tonight in the hope that eight more men might be found alive.

Officers said, 40 hours after the heavily-armed little ship turned over during maneuvers, that it would be impossible to cut through that hull and find what lay inside before midnight.

They were spurred on in their work by a story from the rescued men that eight of their companions were still alive in the engine room when they escaped through a hatch under water to reach the surface.

The floating coffin, still bottom up as it was when a cruiser found it off the coast, was shoved into the Sasebo drydock, its masts and funnel in the cutaway where keels ordinarily go.

Pumps went into operation forcing out the water from the vessel.

The three sailors rescued said their comrades in the engine room had been too weak to follow their avenue of escape.

Effort To Permeate Case With Politics Declares Delaney

Court Room, Albany, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—There has been "an effort to permeate this case with politics," District Attorney John T. Delaney declared today in summing up the case against Manny Street, accused of kidnaping Lieutenant John J. O'Connell, son of the powerful O'Connell political clan.

"What has politics to do with the seizure of a boy and his imprisonment in a prison worse than those of old?" cried Delaney.

"Who cares whether Dan O'Connell is a political leader. Whether O'Connell or anybody else attempts to tell me what to do would make no difference with me. I would do my duty."

Judith Lane

By JOANNE BOWMAN

"When I was a girl," observed Cila, with the affection of an ancient Greek, "my mother recorded me."

"Times and bestesses have changed," laughed Mrs. Dale, but there was apology in her voice, "no under the circumstances come along."

The horses met them on the main deck and propelling Judith gently along by a delicate pressure on her arm, came to a stop on the after deck where the crowd had gathered.

"Folks," Mrs. Bevin's voice was gentle, friendly, "I want you to meet Tom's stenographer, Miss Lane."

"Having been catalogued," observed Cila, laughing, "suppose you come along over here and sit with the only other working girl aboard."

Judith followed Cila, slightly bewildered, while the crowd laughed good-naturedly. Judith noticed Norman wasn't on deck, nor was Big Tom. She sank into a wicker chair which was pushed out from somewhere, and then saw Norman approaching, an exquisitely lovely girl smiling up into his face.

The girl accepted a chair, directly opposite Judith's and she noticed with a start that this was Mathilde Bevin, a Mathilde who had changed tremendously since she had last seen her.

Her eyes, artfully shadowed, seemed dark instead of pale blue, beneath the crown of platinum hair. She wore a dark blue organdy, cut on exaggerated sailor-suit lines with silver braid and buttons for trimming. It was unquestionably smart.

JUDITH sought for a simile to express the change in the plump, dowdy girl she had known and the gently rounded, beautifully sophisticated one before her. She said it. She was as different as the Tilly her father had once called her, was different from the Mathilde he called her now when he didn't forget.

Norman seated himself near Judith, a proprietary air about him which caused the Bevin's eyes to narrow.

"Miss Lane," she began with a patronizing note in her voice, "you look badly. Has father been working you too hard, or have you been dithering for the former fashionable figure?"

"Forced dieting," barked Tom Bevin who had come up behind Judith, "all of us were. We found the natives down there about starved and this child," with a fond pat of Judith's head, "slipped her poor share to the kids."

"Really, tell us about the trip, Miss Lane," suggested someone.

"Help!" gasped Mathilde delicately, "not that. I've been bored with tales of surveying trips ever since I can remember."

"You wouldn't have been bored with this one, or on it either," her father suggested, comfortably. "We had the kind of a storm, Tilly, which used to send you scurrying under the bed."

Tilly flushed scarlet and the crowd hooted at the idea of the elegant Mathilde on all fours seeking shelter.

"Peculiar how danger brings out the primitive in us," remarked someone.

"Danger," retorted Mathilde, her voice brittle, "brings out a lot of strange emotions... storms especially."

"For illustration. During one of my earlier trips abroad we spent some time in Italy. I managed to shake my chaperone... oh, yes, mother tried to have me properly duenned... and take a cruise on the Mediterranean."

"It was an Italian boat with an Italian captain, young fellow... handsome in a plebeian sort of way. We ran into a tremendous storm. Now of course under ordinary circumstances I would never have spoken to the man but that storm worked on my emotions so thoroughly it took me a fortnight ashore to realize I loathed, instead of loved, him."

Judith's eyes were no longer grey, they were blue-black with anger. She looked at Norman, he was smiling easily, as though amused at the story, then she looked at Cila.

The girl's red lips had parted to show the gleam of white teeth, her figure seemed vibrating with anger, but when she spoke her voice was filled with laughter.

"My word, Miss Bevin," she chuckled, "one might almost think you were inferring that Mr. Dale decided to fall in love with Judy, because they ran into a small hurricane."

Norman sat up with a start—"Oh, no," he protested, "Mathilde's always reminding over affairs."

Horse Thieves Beware Was Slogan Of Ulster Horsemen

The Theft of Horses Had Developed to Such an Extent That Horse Owners Gathered Together and Formed a Society to Apprehend Horse Thieves—Six Cents Reward for "Indented Lad"—In the Days of Anti-Masonry.

It was the beginning of spring in Pelham, "Zillah" a tale of the Holy City, "Tales of Women" and "Sad Tales and Glad Tales" by Reginald Kester.

One book with an interesting title was "Domestic Duties, or Instructions to Married Ladies," that undoubtedly had a wide circulation.

The Messrs. Chipp also called attention to the fact that the Ulster Circulating Library with over 500 volumes was at length completed, and that the titles had been selected with the greatest care. The library remained open for several months for public inspection when "books were suffered to be taken out." Undoubtedly the reading public of today would "suffer" if forced to depend for their reading matter on the contents of the books of those early days.

"Six Cents Reward" For those who like to recall the "good old days" one wonders how they would care to pick up their newspaper this evening and read an advertisement such as this that appeared in the Sentinel of that day under the heading "Six Cents Reward." The advertisement read: "Runaway from the subscriber on the evening of the fourth instant, an indented lad by the name of James, a man of color, being in the 21st year of his age; all persons are hereby forbidden trusting, harboring or employing said runaway under the penalty of the law."

Another advertisement under the same heading read: "Runaway from the subscribers, residing near the village of New Paltz in this county, on the 8th of November last, a negro man named Caesar, about 19 years of age, of a dark complexion, and well made. Had on when he went away a suit of brown woolen domestic cloth, striped jacket and a fur hat. He carried with him a suit of gray linen woolsey, pretty well worn. A reward of six cents will be paid for his apprehension and delivery to the subscribers, but no charges."

Old Kingston Academy Some idea of life in the village in those early days is obtained by a careful reading of this issue of the old Sentinel, both the news and the advertisements. For advertisements were news in those days just as they are—or should be—today. One of the advertisements was inserted by H. P. Arms, principal of old Kingston Academy. In which it was stated that the next term of the institution would commence on Monday, February 2, and it was expected that a lady of suitable qualifications would be ready to take charge of the female department.

In the higher branches at the academy were taught history, natural and moral philosophy, rhetoric, logic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and surveying. The classics were also taught and there was a separate charge for a course in painting and ornamental needlework.

The Post Office Department William Cockburn, postmaster, ran an advertisement relative to "arrangements of mails" and giving the closing days during the winter for the "northern land mail, southern land mail, Delaware mail, Milford mail, Rhinebeck mail, and the New Paltz Landing and Esopus mail."

"Tripps' Cough Drops" Long before the days of "Trade" and "Mark" the cough drops of Poughkeepsie the cough drops of Tripp, and also of Anderson, were popular as evidenced by an advertisement carried by Dr. James Mairs under the heading "Drugs & Medicines."

Dr. Mairs evidently believed in advertising and carried a one column full page advertisement on the last page of the Sentinel in which he called attention to his supply of surgical instruments, paints and oils, dress-stuffs, patent medicines, and Dr. Clark's tonic elixir for fever and ague and intermittent fever. This tonic had been tested by a "discerning public for more than 25 years in different parts of the country."

"Wanted Two Apprentices" J. A. Vernald, merchant tailor, who stated he had learned his trade in the city of New York, sought the patronage of ladies and gentlemen. He had taken the shop, nearly opposite the Kingston Hotel on Crown street. He cut ladies' habits 25¢ kept constantly for sale ready-made clothing. He had just received from New York some ladies' fashion clothes and wanted immediately two apprentices to learn the tailoring trade.

That spring was near at hand was shown by the advertisement of Joseph S. Smith that he had just received a fresh supply of garden seeds raised by the Shakers at Hancock, Berkshire county, Mass., and actually put up in papers.

Even in those early days Kingston was noted for its many fine gardens but there were no garden clubs in those days for the women of that period did not have the modern conveniences for operating a home as efficiently as they do those days, and had but little leisure for themselves.

Dumond Erects Hotel James Dumond also called attention through the advertising columns of the Sentinel that he had erected a large and convenient hotel within a mile of the court house on the road to Hurley where he would be happy to afford accommodations to such as might be pleased to favor him with their custom. He also called attention that there was good stabling for the best of provender for horses available.

Many Sought Apprentices The Sentinel carried a notice that it wanted immediately an apprentice in the printing business, from 16 to 17 years of age. The Ulster County Furnace also sought as an apprentice to the business "a smart boy from 14 to 15 years of age, who can come well recommended." James W. Baldwin and Oliver Halsey were the proprietors of the Ulster County Furnace where castings of all descriptions were made.

"Some Jamaica Spirits" James W. Baldwin also called attention to the fact that he had just received five hogheads 4th proof Jamaica Spirits which would be sold low for cash.

J. S. Smith also had a few barrels of rye whiskey of good quality, and also a quantity of live geese feathers at a reasonable price.

"Water Proof Hats" Daniel Bailey who had just commenced business at the store lately occupied by H. D. Keyser, was offering water proof hats of every description, both men's and boys' as well as they could be bought anywhere in the state. He also paid cash for furs.

P. Catlin was continuing to carry on the carriage and wagon making business while M. Miner was engaged in the blacksmith business. Another engaged in the coach and wagon making business was Benjamin W. Schock.

"Those Good Old Days" Yes, there were the good old days back in the 1820's—that is good to talk about, but there are few living in Kingston today who would care to give up the modern conveniences of their homes; the modern means of transportation, the radio, electric light, the telephone, to mention but a few conveniences of today, to live again those early days.

USE OF GALL BLADDER

One of the organs I was never able to understand was the gall bladder. It holds only a small quantity of bile, whereas the amount manufactured by the liver in one day would fill it many times.

However as the bile in the gall bladder was thicker or more concentrated than when it was manufactured in the liver, I had the idea that this thickness made up for its lack of quantity; that it was used for emergencies.

Now as the liver is the king of the organs and the gall bladder an important part of it, an irritable gall bladder being responsible for a great deal of pain and distress, much research work is being done on the liver and gall bladder throughout the entire world.

And one of the discoveries, ten years ago, was that the bile in the gall bladder had another important job besides helping to increase the amount of bile which goes directly to the small intestine instead of going to the gall bladder first.

When there is no food in the stomach, that is, before a meal, the liver is manufacturing bile, but the amount is very small. The gall bladder is partly filled with thick or concentrated bile, of which the bile salts form an important part.

As soon as the meal that is eaten passes out of the stomach into the small intestine, the lower end of the gall bladder opens and pours some of this concentrated bile on the food. The bile salts in this bile are immediately absorbed by the blood vessels connected with the small intestine, and these bile salts are carried directly to the liver and stimulate the liver to increased activity.

This means that the liver makes more bile to send to the gall bladder and the gall bladder continues to expel more of its bile into the small intestine—a circular action.

Thus the gall bladder does more than simply hold thick bile to be used in emergencies.

It means that the use or function of the gall bladder is to provide a "reserve" of concentrated or thick bile which is of value both in digestion and as a means of stimulating the liver to increased activity at the time when it is most needed; that is during digestion.

Research physicians have been able to show that any bending exercise, deep breathing, anything that squeezes the liver stimulates activity in the liver and gall bladder. Thus bile flowing down in the intestine kills

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

A Mere Shadow

New York—Fashion has been so busy spreading her net, that of late she has caught fashionables in a web of shadows. The slenderest of threads, she is very, very smart for the moment. She is in frothy ruffles and all manner of frivolous ruffles and ruffles.

Just to be contrary though, to-day's sketch, although of this type, is not net, but organza, and so very sheer that, even though black, it is like a shadow rather than a dress. The new black dresses are like that, which makes it easy to understand why black should be worn in a season when one can be expected to go in for light colors.

The smartly dressed woman always finds some good reason for wearing black. When it comes to adding a bit of color, or for wearing black instead of black, this season it is black that is chosen. Blue, too, is pink by the more discriminating, for a blue by day, and a pink by night.

The habit of wearing organza for dress was formed last summer. Organza and its sister fabric, organdy, and all manner of thistle-down fabric are again with us. Of course, there are lace, too, for the colored lace dress is now a classic; the point to remember is that sheer means sheerer, and that especially if your choice is black, the most invisible sort of fabric you can find is the kind to choose. If you are going in for long, fluid lines, which may be as wide as you like, which may be as wide as you like.

TOUCHED WITH PINK

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Seersuckers are the big topic of the day. Every one wants them, with the result that seersuckers are used for slightly formal as well as shirtwaist types.

Knitted lines are again in the spotlight, as well as the linen lace, which are still to conform with the fashion for crisp fabrics. In a French collection shown in this country knitted and woven fabrics of flax are given prominence.

A gown for summer evenings shown in the collection of Rosine, which is of black organza. The low decollete is framed in flesh pink. A French collection shown in this country knitted and woven fabrics of flax are given prominence.

Necklines Open

New York—Necklines still tend to be close to the throat but not upstanding or high; and many have a lowered line to show a little of the skin below the throat.

One of the most admired dresses in the Paray showing is a black afternoon one that has a round decol-lete almost too low for street wear; at either side of the front is an immense bow of the fabric laid obliquely to follow the neckline, very soft and becoming. Paton has lots of little white touches at the neck, sort of irregular or cut-up collars, that come close to the throat.

King George and Queen Mary have selected four basic gown designs as correct for Buckingham court appearances this season. One, sketched at the extreme left, is to be executed in orchid - mauve brocade with a Sicilian purple train. Also approved as the gown of magnificence in white net left center, with its cascading tulle and embellished decollete. Graduated ruffles decorate the sleeves.

Debutantes, too, are sure their gowns in 1934 must reflect with real propriety. The hand-embroidered gown of interspersed mauve - pink centers with a train of English velvet. Their majesties also found the ripple-green satin creation slight, suitable. Its English velvet train is embellished with gold and green tinted crystals. Individuals may modify designs, but not patterns.

Rabbit or Rarebit?

Many argumentative wars have been waged on the question of whether "rabbit" or "rarebit" is the correct word. Modern dictionaries give the preference to the former, but "rarebit" has energetic defenders. The term is probably a jocular hit at the Welsh, as in New England a salt cod is styled a poor man's "turkey" and in Old England a "Norfolk capon" is a red herring.

Federal Officers Hound Kidnapers, Checking Off 'Public Enemy' List

By WOODWARD ALLEN

Washington (AP)—Quietly but relentlessly the blue pencil has been moving down the secret "public enemy" list which the federal government compiled this year, checking names after names as prison gates clanged behind another criminal.

During the last year that list has held the names of 31 men wanted on some particularly spectacular violation of federal laws. Now 18 are behind prison bars, three are waiting trial, two killed themselves, one was shot in a gang attempt to free him, two were lynched and five are at large.

All were involved in some kidnapping or extortion case, or both.

The justice department's division of investigation has stayed on the trails of less spectacular federal law violators, but the big push has been against kidnapers.

"Break the Gangs." It started a year ago when the country was engulfed in such cases. Through the spring and early summer almost each week saw some family receiving ransom notes. The so-called "Lindbergh law" was new on the books, giving federal agents the right to enter any kidnapping case.

Attorney General Cummings took office, and almost immediately he called in his aides to order: "Don't let up until you've got the kidnaping gangs broken up."

J. Edgar Hoover reorganized the division of investigation and sent a terse order down the line: "Tighten up." Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan visited strategic points and knifed federal and state officers into a dragnet which has swept so clean that two gangsters have chosen suicide this year in preference to trial.

Score Stands 26-5. Now the score stands 26 to 5. The law has caught up with 26 and five still are sought. Odds doom them. Crimes committed and criminals involved include the following:

Kidnaping of Warden Tom White, of Leavenworth; Harold Fontaine, serving time; Frank Nash killed in connection with major federal offenses remains uncaught.

Kidnaping of Charles Boettcher, Leavenworth; Thomas Holden and Francis Keating, among escaped prisoners who were caught, held for kidnaping White.

America's "Dishonor Roll" Dwindles

Down the list of spectacular outlaws runs Uncle Sam's blue pencil, checking off one after another as jail gates clang shut behind them. Some, in gangland's language, have been "rubbed out" by sudden death and others have died by their own hands as the law clamped down on them. Of 31 in the public enemy list this year, only five wanted in connection with major federal offenses remain uncaught.

Involved include the following: Kidnaping of Warden Tom White, of Leavenworth; Harold Fontaine, serving time; Frank Nash killed in connection with major federal offenses remains uncaught.

The Great Excitement

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"New," said Willy Nilly, the little goatee-like man of Puddle Muddle, "I'll certainly have to attend to my stitching-out, pointed ear."

"Yes, how now," agreed Rip, the Dog. "You haven't had much time to do anything for yourself lately. Just one thing after the other has happened."

"All is quiet around Puddle Muddle," called Christopher Columbus Crow. "I'll behave myself so you won't have to bother about me."

"I surely won't," cause any trouble," agreed Rip, "and I'll go down to the pond as quickly as my four legs can carry me and will tell the Ducks to be sure they don't get into any mix-ups, and I'll say the same to Top Notch, the Rooster."

"We'll help you all we can, how now."

"Oh, that will be wonderful," said Willy Nilly happily. "I want my ears to look all right when the cubs open their eyes and see me for the first time."

"So Rip run down to the pond and be quick."

"We're all going to be careful not to get into any mix-ups so Willy can see the time to attend to his ears."

"We'll be very good, quick-quick," agreed all the Ducks. "Jelly Bean promised not to dig any more around Grandpa Grouchy Grouchy's place or take any sap from his trees."

"At last," said Willy Nilly. "I will have some time to myself. Oh, how beautifully quiet and peaceful it is."

He had hardly finished speaking when there came the sounds of water splashing and shouts and laughing. It seemed as though the whole world were coming right to Puddle Muddle.

"Salvage" Program For Legion Drum Corps

As a meeting of Kingston Post American Legion, Drum Corps, held at the Legion Building Monday evening, it was decided to go into a "salvage" program with idea of raising funds to enable the corps to carry on.

It is planned to secure a truck suitable for the work, give two members of the corps, now unemployed, a job, and collect newspapers, magazines, rags, empty bottles that have a deposit value and anything that has a salvage value. By collecting this material and with the proper classification, it will be possible to dispose of it to an advantage.

There are any number of cellars and attics in this city which have their full quota of discarded newspapers, magazines, rags and empty bottles on which a deposit has been paid but never redeemed. With the spring housecleaning just coming in season, it is planned to ask permission with the aforementioned salvage material, to call Lester Barth, who heads the salvage committee, at the Legion Building. The telephone number is 1914. He will immediately have the truck come to the address and the men on the "Salvage Detail" will clean out the discarded material.

A suitable place, centrally located, has been secured where the material will be taken and classified by members of the corps and made ready to sell to local wholesale dealers. It is conceivable that with the cooperation of the local citizenry, the corps with this program will soon be in a position to better carry on Kingston Post Drum Corps has been a source of wonderful publicity for the city and wherever they have appeared, have always come in for a great amount of favorable comment.

The idea of this "Salvage" campaign was received by Captain Lester C. Elmendorf while attending the state legislative dinner a few weeks ago. Bob Jones, who was one of the original members of the Kingston corps but now living in Schenectady, and a member of the crack Legion corps at that place, was relating to Captain Elmendorf how well they were doing with this type of campaign in Schenectady.

All of the members are vitally interested in the success of the campaign here and will be pleased to have names and addresses of those having salvage material for disposal. However, telephone orders to Lester Barth at the American Legion Building will also secure the desired result.

KENNETH GARRISON IN TRIBUTE TO BRANDORF

March 12, 1934
Editor, Kingston Daily Freeman
Kingston, New York

Recently, I received a telephone call from one of the death of Rev. Brandorf. For several reasons I would appreciate the publication of the following.

Rev. Brandorf was a substantial member of the Kingston Youth Council with which I was affiliated. I am sure that every member of that organization will agree thoroughly with me when I say that the acquaintance and companionship of such a gentleman as Rev. Brandorf was an inspiration to our lives. As I read over the several tributes which were paid to that extraordinary character, I cannot help but realize that but little can be added to that which has already been stated. In his short stay with us he fulfilled a great mission. His completed work bears witness of him, as did the value and indispensability of his presence, proven by his many afflictions and through of personal friends.

I did not have the pleasure of knowing Rev. Brandorf intimately for the term of his complete pastorate in Kingston, but for the few years that I had occasion to assist him in his duties, I found him to be a willing servant and a constant and strong proclaimer of Him in whose service he found himself delighted to be an apostle.

He was called to be a speaker at the First Annual Camp Congress of the Kingston Youth Council two years ago. I shall never forget him as I last saw him. His versatility was a testimony to the completeness of his life.

The friends and relatives of Rev. Brandorf have lost a true friend, the Church of the Redeemer has lost a strong pastor, the City of Kingston has lost a loyal citizen, the Kingdom of God has lost a valuable teacher; yet in a larger measure Rev. Brandorf is not lost to us, but will ever remain with us. Our hearts are weighed down by his untimely passing, yet we rejoice to know that he continues to be, and will be, and that perhaps at some future time we may again renew old acquaintances with him.

I cannot help but think of a portion of those immortal words of Abraham Lincoln: "The world will little know or long remember what we say here; but it can never forget what he did here."

I sincerely hope that his faith will aid in a measure to sustain Mrs. Brandorf in her day of sorrow.

To lose fat safely and quickly take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—as 25c bottle lasts 4 weeks—Get it at any drug store in America.

If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.—Adv.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS
By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD — Back at work after a fall away from the camera, Buster Keaton is making what is as far as he personally is concerned—a "fantastic picture with talk."

His first day on the picture, which is first of a series of two-reelers for Educational studios, was spent on location in the desert, and they didn't carry sound equipment. On the studio sets a lot of dialog is heard but not much of it comes from Buster.

Performances built on pantomime took Keaton from the two-reelers to last feature, and when the screen started babbling, Buster didn't care one way or the other—except that he wanted to remain silent and let others "talk their heads off," as he puts it.

"The Gold Digger," Keaton's comeback two-reeler, is being filmed much as a silent comedy used to be. They have a script and dialog, but it is, to say the least, subject to change as they go along. Somebody invariably has an idea that's brighter than some previous bright idea in the script. And yet the whole picture is to be finished in four or five days, or less.

Kay Keeps Bungalow
Kay Francis, with a brand new divorce from Kenneth McKenna, is retaining the small bungalow in the heart of Hollywood which they had occupied. It suits Kay as exactly the sort of place to live, even though she could afford a Beverly Hills mansion.

"Even if I'm making money now," she says, "that's no reason I should spend it all on a place to live. I want to keep on living just as I am now, the rest of my life after I quit working, and it's spurned now I might have to come down later."

The Francis house differs from most stellar homes in that it is all on one floor, "hasn't even an entrance hall," and aside from a diminutive "music room" no larger than a desk-top, boasts no extra space that might be counted luxurious.

Barrymore's Estate
But on John Barrymore's estate—figuratively in the clouds over Hollywood—it is possible for the uninitiated to become hopelessly lost in a collection of separate houses.

The place is so difficult to reach that the spiked walls surrounding it seem almost unnecessary. But that difficulty, as Dolores Costello Barrymore explains, faces only guests or those who have business there. Sightseers seem to have no trouble.

For instance, there was the morning she awakened to hear two women, in the inner patio, pointing out to each other the various features of a movie star's home!

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD — Back at work after a fall away from the camera, Buster Keaton is making what is as far as he personally is concerned—a "fantastic picture with talk."

His first day on the picture, which is first of a series of two-reelers for Educational studios, was spent on location in the desert, and they didn't carry sound equipment. On the studio sets a lot of dialog is heard but not much of it comes from Buster.

Performances built on pantomime took Keaton from the two-reelers to last feature, and when the screen started babbling, Buster didn't care one way or the other—except that he wanted to remain silent and let others "talk their heads off," as he puts it.

"The Gold Digger," Keaton's comeback two-reeler, is being filmed much as a silent comedy used to be. They have a script and dialog, but it is, to say the least, subject to change as they go along. Somebody invariably has an idea that's brighter than some previous bright idea in the script. And yet the whole picture is to be finished in four or five days, or less.

Kay Keeps Bungalow
Kay Francis, with a brand new divorce from Kenneth McKenna, is retaining the small bungalow in the heart of Hollywood which they had occupied. It suits Kay as exactly the sort of place to live, even though she could afford a Beverly Hills mansion.

"Even if I'm making money now," she says, "that's no reason I should spend it all on a place to live. I want to keep on living just as I am now, the rest of my life after I quit working, and it's spurned now I might have to come down later."

The Francis house differs from most stellar homes in that it is all on one floor, "hasn't even an entrance hall," and aside from a diminutive "music room" no larger than a desk-top, boasts no extra space that might be counted luxurious.

Barrymore's Estate
But on John Barrymore's estate—figuratively in the clouds over Hollywood—it is possible for the uninitiated to become hopelessly lost in a collection of separate houses.

The place is so difficult to reach that the spiked walls surrounding it seem almost unnecessary. But that difficulty, as Dolores Costello Barrymore explains, faces only guests or those who have business there. Sightseers seem to have no trouble.

For instance, there was the morning she awakened to hear two women, in the inner patio, pointing out to each other the various features of a movie star's home!

Chicago, March 12 (AP).—Charles "Ice Wagon" Connors, one of the Touby gang, was long hunted for the kidnapping of John Factor, was found shot to death in a remote section of the Southwest Side today.

Some market analysts continue to hold that a drastic expansion of the currency is still more than a possibility. The silver activities in Congress were seen as straws in the wind and the authority of the President to further reduce the gold value of the dollar was not being overlooked.

Two Killed in Drop From Blazing House

Year-old Boy in Critical Condition as Result of Fall When Firemen Threw Him From House to Street, Fire Men's Report.

New York, March 12 (AP).—An 11-year-old boy was killed and a girl, 10, was seriously injured when they fell from a burning tenement house fire on the East Side of New York City.

The fire broke out in the rear of the building at 100 West 125th St. at 10:30 p.m. and spread rapidly. Firemen fought the blaze for two hours before it was under control. The building was a three-story tenement house.

The boy, 11, was thrown from the second floor window by the firemen. He was found on the street and taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he is in a critical condition.

The girl, 10, was thrown from the first floor window. She was found on the street and taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where she is in a serious condition.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. It is believed that the fire started in the rear of the building.

Commissioner who watched the fire put down the flames today, commented that the building was "just another one of those old places."

Firemen said that had the women waited a minute more they could have been taken safely down. The firemen assisted about 100 persons from the building. About twenty were taken to hospitals for treatment of minor injuries.

CLOTHING SPECIALIST IN ULLSTER COUNTY THIS WEEK

Miss Margaret Morehouse, clothing specialist from the State College of Home Economics, will be in the county three days this week to help the homemakers of the county with the problems of the spring wardrobe. All day meetings will be held each day as follows:

March 14—Kingston, Home Bureau Office, 10:30 a.m.

March 15—Modena, Community Hall, 10:30 a.m.

March 16—Napanoch, residence of M. E. Church, 10:30 a.m.

At these all-day meetings ladies of the county are given an opportunity to learn the making of the new accessories for the spring wardrobe—scarfs, collars and cuffs and all those jaunty touches that help to bring the wardrobe up to date. Miss Morehouse will have with her patterns of the latest accessories, and will explain the construction of them. Ladies attending the meetings are to bring scissors, needles, pins, in fact, all sewing equipment and paper for cutting patterns.

Time will be given for discussion and for any questions that any attending may wish to ask. Miss Morehouse has headed up the clothing work in Ulster county this year, has made many pleasant contacts with the women of Ulster county, and a good crowd is expected to greet her at each of the three centers this week. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies of the county to attend either of the sessions.

At The Theatres

Today.

Kingston Theatre. "The Mystery of Mr. X." Just about the most exciting entertainment to come to the Kingston Theatre in some time. Although there is a quantity of killing during the run of the film, its cleverness, its dialogue and its splendid cast all help to take away the stigma of too much bloodshed. The plot concerns a certain mysterious gentleman with a peculiar penchant for establishing policemen to death. Naturally, this causes great activity among the various arms of the law in a valiant effort to arrest and retard the killer's progress among the diminishing police force. Robert Montgomery, in the starring role, does yeoman work in bringing the killer to justice. Lewis Stone and Elizabeth Allan are also in the cast. Mr. Montgomery was never cast in a picture better suited to his talents, and the whole show moves along with a brisk, exciting speed that has no let-up. Grand entertainment.

Orpheum. "Sitting Pretty." A musical romance, much like the rest of them, but well worth seeing. Filled with lively and tuneful songs, multitudes of beautiful girls, some really funny comedy and well trained dance choruses, this show has everything necessary to class it as a hit. The talent cast offers such stars as Ginger Rogers, Jack Oakie, Lew Cody, Thelma Todd, Jack Haley, Pickens Sisters and Gregory Ratoff.

Broadway. "Cross Country Cruise" and "Trick for Trick." Lew Ayres, Alice White, Alan Dinehart, June Knight, Minna Gombell and Arthur Vinton get tangled up in a variety of melodramatic moments during the course of a cross country bus cruise. Lew Ayres, a playboy with incoherent ideas, sees June Knight get on a bus for San Francisco and immediately buys a ticket. Alan Dinehart had planned to travel with June Knight but his wife comes along to complicate matters. And there is Alice White, stealing the show as a hitch hiker delver. The bus travels through some beautiful scenery on the way, and the action moves along with a fast and comical pace throughout. "Trick for Trick" is the second feature offering with Ralph Morgan.

Presbyterian Ladies' Meeting. Circle No. 1 of the Elmwood Street Presbyterian Church will hold a special meeting at the church Thursday afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. All the ladies of the church are invited.

Junior Luther League. The Junior Luther League will meet tonight at 7 o'clock at Trinity Lutheran Church.

The Pro For Wiltwyck Golf Club

Alex Tallman

Thomas C. Goodman, manager of the Wiltwyck Golf Club, has procured the services of Alex Tallman, experienced linkman, as the professional at the Hurley avenue course for the 1934 season.

Tallman, says Mr. Goodman, came before the public eye in golf when in 1929 he scored two holes in one in quick succession at the Colonial Country Club, Albany.

In 1930 he was runner-up for low in the Albany city championship, qualifying round. George Lawler, defending champ, defeated him in the 36-hole final on the last green.

In 1932 Tallman became assistant pro at Schallert's Country Club, where he had considerable experience in professional competitive golf. Last year he finished 65 on the Albany course.

With Tallman at the Wiltwyck, members of that golf club will have the choice of two instructors, Manager Goodman being the other available one.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

The Glenn Cunningham-Bell three-mile duels are over for the indoor season unless something special is arranged and the boys are right back where they started.

Of only one thing can anybody be certain—there never were two other milers anywhere who could team against them.

The peculiar thing about both these youngsters is that racing in the same "miles" neither probably will ever run quite as fast as he did.

Deep respect for an opponent never makes for record-breaking time in a distance race when the race is great competitors and like to come from behind.

Two races and they split the decisions evenly, by about the same margin each time, the thick legs of a woolen jersey.

But one day, maybe, one of them will get in there without the other, feeling full of running, with the opposition of such caliber that no danger lurks in the rear.

That will be the day a 4:05 mile will be run like breaking sticks. The first time they met in the Garden the first half was run in 2:14, the second in 2:00.

BILLIARDS

Champ Rudolph Stars

Erwin Rudolph, pocket billiard champion of the world, played victoriously, as was expected, in his two exhibition matches Monday night, defeating Julius Teller, former Kingston champ, 100-15, at Nick's, and Lou Maxon, 100-24, at the Elks.

At the Kaslich parlor, one of the largest crowds ever seen there, watched the expert stamp out the efforts of Teller in four innings, scoring high runs of 24, 49 and 20. Teller's best was 13.

It took Rudolph six innings to outpoint Maxon at the Elks, where his best run was 63. Maxon had one of 14.

After the competitive shows, Rudolph gave exhibition matches, demonstrating entertaining trick shots, some brand new ones and others that he had done here before.

Tournament Standing.

The city pocket billiard championship, which ended Sunday, Freddie Planthaber copping the standing marked by two ties in the standing of the series. Stan Wojcik and Julius Teller are deadlocked for second place and fourth.

Arrangements have been made to play off the ties in 350 point matches of 125 point blocks. Kaslich is slated to oppose Quick tonight in their first block and Teller will play Wojcik Wednesday.

High run for the tourney is held by Planthaber, the champ, as shown by the list which notes three cue manipulators over the 30 mark.

It's Ryan's tough luck but the Giants' good fortune to have in Jackson, whenever he is fully able to play, one of the best shortstops in baseball.

He outclasses Ryan in hitting and experience and has a rifle-shot arm.

The lineup

The rest of the club will tee off in the national open the way it finished in front of the 1933 field.

Terry and Hughes Critz, the platted second baseman, will have George Grantham as their understudy.

The outfield of Joe Moore, George (Kiddo) Davis and Mel Ott will cover all available territory, aided when necessary by Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, the celebrated tourist and pinch-hitter, and Hans Leiter, the curly-haired clouter.

Kendalls Win Overtime Game From the Counselors, 24-23

Eddie Coughlin's Kendall Oil Five chalked up its sixth consecutive victory in eight days by outpointing St. Mary's Counselors on their court, 24-23, Monday night, "Chipe" Rymer, flashy little right forward, winning for the Kendalls with a spectacular field from the corner in the last 20 seconds of play.

The game was close from the opening until the last foot of the timer's whistle, the Counselors leading at the termination of the first quarter, 3-2, the Kendalls at the half, 9-8, and again at the finish of the third period, 18-13.

In a rough and hard fourth quarter, Van Deussen tied the standing for the Counselors, 21-21, with a last minute foul, forcing an extra session.

In the extra, battle Van Deussen sank a long shot, putting the home club ahead, 23-21. Rymer, Every, Debrosky missed fouls. Dykes caged a foul, bringing the Oilmen to within one of tying the standing, and then Rymer came through with his spectacular field that won for the Coughlinmen by a lone point.

Information About Income Tax Returns

Commissioner Helvering of the Bureau of Internal Revenue made public today the following information as to the attitude of the Treasury Department with respect to T. D. 4115, as supplemented by T. D. 4121 requiring taxpayers to attach statements to their returns showing whether or not they received advice in preparing the returns.

In requiring taxpayers coming advisers who aid in filling out income tax returns, it is not intended to require taxpayers to hire advisers nor to discourage taxpayers from accepting the assistance of advisers who act without charge. Each taxpayer may prepare his own return without advice or may seek advice from any source of his own choosing.

The payment of compensation is not the test, however, as to whether the adviser must be named. The taxpayer must use his own judgment as to whether the advice for which he pays no compensation is of such a casual character that he does not care to report it. All advisers receiving compensation must be named if the taxpayer fails to name one from whom he accepts friendly advice without compensation, he will be deemed thereby to have accepted full responsibility for his own return and no plea that he acted on advice of another will be heard.

Continued confusion on the part of many taxpayers concerning the proper method of treating stock and deposits in closed banks on their income tax returns brought forth another clarifying statement today from Commissioner Guy T. Helvering.

If the bank is in the hands of a conservator and is being reorganized, no deduction of the deposit may be claimed on income tax returns, the commissioner said.

If the bank is being liquidated and a statement has been issued by the liquidator indicating the approximate per cent of deposits to be paid on final liquidation, the depositor may claim as a deduction on his 1933 return his indicated loss in the deposit.

Stockholders in closed banks may claim as a deduction the cost or other basis of their stock if a satisfactory showing of its worthlessness is made. For example, if the bank

It means something—

Perhaps the best type of machine ever built for moistening tobacco. Recently perfected from a model built in our factory and now used in the manufacture of Chesterfield Cigarettes.

This picture shows the machines used to remove the stems from Chesterfield tobacco.

THIS most modern way of moistening tobacco for stemming—first used in the manufacture of Chesterfields—opens up the pores and puts the tobacco in condition to remove the stems.

The tobacco is put into the wire baskets stems down and enters the long steel ovens where the steam comes up from below, softening the stems without wetting the rest of the leaf.

The stems are removed by stemming machines of the latest type.

Everything that modern science knows about, or money can buy, that can make a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better, is used in making Chesterfield.
